

PRIVACY POLICY

As you may be aware, there are various laws that govern how we collect and use information and Care for the Family is committed to keeping your data safe. The most recent legislation is the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Care for the Family is a not-for-profit organisation (full details at the end of this document) and, as such, is not required to register with the Information Commissioner's Office; however, it is still required to comply with the Regulation.

Under the legislation, you have certain rights:

- The right to be informed how your personal data is processed
- The right of access to your personal data
- The right to edit and update your personal information
- The right to have your personal information deleted
- The right to restrict processing of your personal information
- The right to object
- The right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority

This document lets you know how, when and why we collect data and how we use it.

How we collect data

We only collect data from people we are connected to (i.e. we do not buy in data lists). When you give us your personal details, we save it and use it to communicate with you. Personal details means things like your name and contact details and personal interests that relate to Care for the Family's activities.

You give us this information when you:

- Make a donation, request materials or information, make a purchase from our online shop, sign up for an event or a specific service, provide comments or complete surveys, or are in correspondence with us. Sometimes we also collect publicly available information from the Charity Commission, from articles, newspapers or blogs or local directories of churches, schools or other community organisations.

When you visit our website, we collect non-personal data such as IP addresses, which pages people visit and which items they download. We do this to ensure our website is working properly and providing a good service.

If you give us sensitive data, such as religious beliefs or physical and mental health information, we will only keep this information where it is relevant to your interaction with us. Care for the Family also collects and holds information about the contact you make and activities you take part in, such as:

- Direct Debit details where applicable
- Gift Aid status
- Any other information provided by yourself that is relevant to your relationship with us
- Volunteering with us

Our legal basis for processing your personal data

We may process the personal information you provide or that we may collect from publically available sources to support our legitimate interest in delivering Care for the Family's charitable mission, or because you have given specific consent or we have a legal obligation.

All our emails and mailings include the option to opt-out of further communications should you wish to do so.

Care for the Family is a registered charity

(England and Wales: 1066905; Scotland: SC038497).

A company limited by guarantee no. 3482910. Registered in England and Wales.

Registered Office: Tovey House, Cleppa Park, Newport, NP10 8BA

We use the information to:

- Give you news and stories about our work, our activities and events
- Ask for financial, and non-financial (such as volunteering), support
- Manage financial transactions, including processing gift aid applications
- Provide information, such as newsletters, or packs that you've asked us for
- Keep records of your relationship with us, such as when you've asked us a question, for information, or had a complaint
- Ask you to join in research to help us improve our services
- Undertake some of our specific activities such as befriending
- Provide ongoing support if you are a regular user of our resources e.g. in your church or community organisation

Whom we share your information with

It is our policy not to sell, trade or rent your personal information to anyone. We only disclose personal data to data processors (for example, companies we use to send out postal mailings) carrying out work on our behalf under a Non-Disclosure Agreement. Any such companies are acting as approved data processors for Care for the Family, and they may only use this information to perform functions as instructed by us. They are required to destroy the information once the function for which it is given has been carried out.

We may need to pass on information if required by law or a regulatory body, like HMRC.

How and where we store your data

The security of your information is very important to us. We ensure that there are appropriate controls and procedures in place to protect your personal details. However, despite all the security and protection we put in the place, the internet is not 100% secure and when you submit data to us, it is always at risk.

We do all we can to protect your personal data, and this includes having the right technology. For example, online forms are encrypted and our network is protected and regularly monitored. When we receive your information, we ensure that it is securely stored and only accessed by those authorised to do so.

How long we keep the data

We'll only keep your personal information for as long we need to fulfil the function that it relates to, or as long as is required by law. For example, HMRC requires us to keep donation, Gift Aid and financial transaction records for seven years.

If you request that we stop sending you marketing or fundraising information, we will keep a record of your contact details and appropriate information to enable us to comply with your request.

How to exercise your rights

You can ask us if we are keeping any personal data about you and can request to receive a copy of that personal data – this is called a Subject Access Request. To make a Subject Access Request you will need to provide adequate proof of identity such as a copy of your passport, birth certificate or driving licence before your request can be processed. Subject Access Requests should be made to the address below.
